fall. It was raw, real, and transformative. The storytelling that Cindy weaves in her one woman show leaves the audience in awe at her ability to transition from one character to another, but more importantly to pay deep homage to her mother and her family. We have carried this performance in our soul and will continue to do so for years to come."

- Jennifer Chambers

People have been asking me about what inspired me to create a show about my mother's life and how my siblings feel about the show. Our son, Colter created two videos with the answers to these questions. You can watch a video HERE about my process of developing the show and how I captured the essence of my mother and another video HERE with interviews of my family members, sharing their thoughts about the show.

You can buy tickets for the Friday, January 20th and Saturday, January 21st shows HERE.
